Ta Willow Romero literally grew up on horseback in the mountains of Montana and Idaho. When her family moved from state to state loading the "rider" did not mean loading the Ryder truck it meant catch your pony and ride her! Willow never knew a day without a horse in her possession and that continues to this day. She has started and trained horses and mules for more that 35 years. Most of her knowledge has come from hands on and 'in the moment experiences' during the twenty years of riding thousands of miles a day through those northern mountains. Willow's goal for this clinic series is to convey her knowledge and experiences of riding trails to you and your horse so that you both are able to enjoy those wonderful moments in the great outdoors safely and comfortably.
